Hello!! from Will-sensei

Hi, my name is William Hanno Rosenthal, and I recently joined Azalea as a new English conversation teacher. I'm really excited to be part of this company, and I'm looking forward to meeting all the students! I'm 26 years old and from the United States, from a state called Maine. Maine is the most northeastern state in the continental United States. If you look at the US on a map and imagine a dinosaur, Maine would be the head. I've been teaching in Japan for just over three years. All of that time was in Chiba prefecture, so I think I've gotten to know this area pretty well. Before I came to Japan I worked mainly on boats in my hometown, which is right by the ocean and a big fishing area. We're famous for Lobster in particular.

I like to read books and watch movies, and study Japanese (sometimes). I also like ramen. Occasionally, on the weekends I try to find a well-reviewed ramen restaurant on the internet, then ride the train to it. If you know a really good ramen restaurant, please tell me. I don't like shrimp and raw tomatoes.

When you are a foreigner living in Japan, people sometimes ask why you decided to come here. For me, I guess it started when I was in my first year of university in Boston. I was trying to choose a different foreign language to study after learning a little French and Spanish in high school. For no special reason I joined a beginner's Japanese class, and really enjoyed it. I had a really good teacher (who was Japanese) that first year. I took a Japanese literature class later on and enjoyed that as well. In my third year of university I did an exchange program and lived in Kanazawa city in Ishikawa prefecture for about a year. After that I decided that after graduating I would try to come back and live here.

It's great to be here, and I hope to meet you soon!
