

July

No.33

2015

by AIRB

school road

I'm going to write about English school in the Coromandel Peninsula. I studied English and sea kayaked. November and December are cool summer months in NZ. Actually we went surfing but it was cool and there were no waves. Then, we sea kayaked. People said "Pancake." It means no waves. There were Japanese junior highschool and highschool students. There were Saudi Arabian young men and a young man from Hong kong. There were Japanese adults, too. I remembered a Saudi Arabian greeting. We sang "Jingle bells" for the Christmas parade. I took part wearing a yukata on a truck. It was a hot Christmas parade. It's the event for the town. Small town, small school, and big mates.

← This is the school. →

I had a great time.

